

January 9th is National Static Electricity Day. Write about an example of when static electricity surprised you or made something fun happen.